EVERYTHING UNDER ONE ROOF

The angled surfaces are the ones that give attic floors their charm even as they reduce space. It's therefore all the more important to use the available room quite effectively. raumplus masters this design pitch with sliding doors that precisely adapt to each angle of the roof. It thus creates attractive additional space in which everything can be accommodated from porcelain to paperbacks.

Attics: Anyone who encounters an architecturally tilted space here doesn't need an eye adjustment but a specialized raumplus partner. With the aid of sliding doors and interior systems, he can steer everything along organized and visually attractive lines at every angle. In areas where the clearance height is only half the amount of that below the crown, this creates precious storage space that integrates perfectly into the overall picture.

In addition to the standard ceiling and floor guide, a special guide rail for angled doors that is connected to the interior system in the form of a decorative border ensures the safe and effortless gliding of doors with customized grading. The selection of the profile system, for example in White or Silver anodized, becomes the design element of the wall and emphasizes its clarity. Everything is possible, from matte Gold and Wenge to shiny chrome. The broad range of door panels offers all options, from a subtle integration into the room all the way to the exclusive eye catcher. Here wood, glass and relief surfaces are available just like individual patterns and motifs that are applied as foil behind glass.

With a multitude of precisely fitting interior system, everything from clothes to filing equipment and from the tea kitchen to the home office can be accommodated here – all depending on the use of the attic refuge: whether it is an open shelf, drawer or clothes rail – they all precisely adapt to the diagonal angle of the room and thus provide the perfect roof organization for lofty living.

The fifth wall: The panels made of glass with extra White paint and the frameless door seamlessly integrate into the room. They are precisely guided into the smallest corner by the profile system S800. The dishes stored in the interior system Classic/Legno of Romana cherry are thus stowed away in a dust-free space.

Wall covering: You can apply fabric in your favorite design with the raumplus sliding doors. In addition to glass and textiles, other countless materials such as wood, metal or three-dimensional plastic are well suited as door panels that attract all the attention.
